PAC Worldwide Launches New Blog on www.pac.com

REDMOND, WA — June 29th, 2011 — PAC Worldwide Corp. today launched a new blog called “Let’s Talk Packaging” that promotes insight into the protective packaging industry through contributions from industry professionals.

PAC Worldwide’s new blog, just like their business, is focused on the customer. This is a place where PAC contributors provide valuable content while keeping it light and fun. The added transparency afforded to the customer through this blog is refreshing and keeps their business real and relatable. PAC’s bloggers are experts in their niche and supply trusted insight and solutions to packaging buyers and other industry professionals. “We are a fun bunch with a lot to say. This blog is a great way to further connect with our customers and others in the packaging industry.”– Erin Smith, Marketing Manager.
