PAC Worldwide Appoints Procurement
Expert to VP Role

(SEATTLE, WA) – Nellie Perry has been named Vice President of Global Sourcing and Procurement at PAC Worldwide. Company President Steve Foster cited her 17-years of industry experience with packaging materials and supply chain management in making the announcement.

Ms. Perry will oversee the procurement of all resins, prints, coatings, tapes, composites, and related materials used in PAC's flexible and sustainable packaging. The global leader produces a wide assortment of mailers, pouches, cold chain packaging, and other customized solutions for a customer list that includes some of the world's most recognized brands.

Prior to joining PAC Worldwide, Ms. Perry managed global strategic sourcing for Michelman, a global developer, and manufacturer of sustainable chemistry used in coatings, digital printing, foodservice packaging, and advanced composites for automotive and aerospace. That followed similar roles for Prysmian Group, Intertape Polymer Group (IPG), and Procter & Gamble.

"Nellie brings the depth of expertise and sophistication in sourcing that we need to support our expanding global operations," said Mr. Foster. "As we scale to meet demand across all market segments, her procurement acumen provides the ideal platform to meet our production targets and drive growth."
